BUILDING PROGRESS INCREASING IN ALL SECTIONS OF CITY

The average resident of Daly City can not help but realize that this city is steadily growing, that building progress is steadily increasing in every section of the city.

But we are perhaps prone to regard this fact as a matter of course, and give it little thought, just noticing the improvements in our own immediate neighborhood.

During the past three months, seventy-three new building permits have been issued, including business structures and modern homes. This in addition to improvements and alterations in buildings.

These new buildings are all of a character that are creditable to the community. And with the building of these new business buildings and homes, new residents are added, all of whom have been convinced that Daly City is "a good place to live."

Every section of Daly City is showing signs of continuous growth, which should be a source of pride to those who have all along believed in the city's possibilities and have prophesied a steady, progressive growth.

There are many reasons for the steady growth of Daly City, including the excellent condition of our well paved strets; an adequate supply of the purest water to be found in any city in California; a volunteer fire department of which every citizen is justly proud; splendid schools and churches; a low tax rate and an excellent municipal government.

Even the most pessimistic must admit that the growth of Daly City has been very satisfactory, and that all indications point to a continuation of this growth. The builders of new business structures and homes must have faith in the future of this section of the glorious state of California, otherwise they would not be investing their capital here.

PIONEER RESIDENT ANSWERS SUMMONS

Louis Spani, who was one of Daly City's oldest pioneers, passed away at his home last Sunday, after a short illness.

Mr. Spani conducted a dairy at Hanover and Acton streets, where the family home now stands, up until the last few years. He was the beloved husband of Rosina Spani, and father of Mrs. Sophie Klinger, Mrs. Hattie Spillane, Mrs. Mary Battye, Mrs. Gussie Kuchac, Louis, Caroline and Frances, and the late Albert Spani, grandfather of Marylin Battye and Beverly Spani. Mr. Spani was a native of Switzerland, aged 51 year, 1 month, 3 days. He was a member of Excelsior Lodge No. 36, O. H. S.

The funeral took place on Wednesday at 9:30 a. m. Requiem high mass was celebrated at St. Maximus church at 10 a. m. Interment was at Holy Cross cemetery.

CROCKER-PERSHING ADDS NEW MEMBERS

The members of the Crocker-Pershing P. T. A. held their regular monthly meeting at Company No. 4 fire house, on Peoria stret, last Tuseday afternoon. Six new members were added to the membership list.

After a very interesting meeting, coffee and cake were enjoyed by the members, Mrs. Reiman, Mrs. H. McKee and Mrs. E. H. Jordan serving on the refreshment committee.

The ladies will hold a whist party on Tuesday afternoon, April 17, at 2:30, in the fire house on Peoria street. Score cards will be 25 cents. Refreshments will be served.

SPECIAL MUSIC AT ST. MAXIMUS CHURCH

Special music will be provided on Easter Sunday at St. Maximus church at High Mass at 11:30 a. m., under the direction of Mr. Edward W. Falvey. The choir will sing St. Patrick's Mass by Wiegard, and the Regina Cocli. Sopranos, Mrs. M. Stearns, Mrs. J. Scanlan, Miss M. Scalia; Alto, Mrs. Edward W. Falvey, Miss C. Poket; Basso, Mr. B. G. Kost; Organist, Miss Clara Poket.

LOSES CONTROL OF CAR AND STRIKES HYDRANT

Last Monday afternoon, Miss Effie Andrews, of 462 Templeton avenue, while driving a Chevrolet sedan, lost control of the machine at Templeton avenue and Hanover street, the car striking a hydrant, jumping over the curb and smashing into a stone wall. Fortunately Miss Andrews was not injured, but there was considerable property damage as a result of the accident.

SERVICES TO BE HELD AT TOP OF THE HILL ON EASTER MORNING

Easter sunrise prayer services will be held next Sunday morning on the hill near the water reservoir, in Daly City, the services to begin at 6:30.

This Easter service, which is an annual affair in this city, having been attended by large crowds in the past few years, is eagerly looked forward to by many residents of Daly City and vicinity.

The Presbyterian and Methodist congregations will unite in this service, and every resident of this community is invited to be present.

It will be a singing and prayer service, with an address by Rev. Elliott L. Fisher, pastor of the Daly City Methodist church.

Rev. Charles H. Gatcher, pastor of the Grace Presbyterian church, who will have charge of the service, says: "We are trusting and hoping that this may be a real hill top service in more ways than one. Come and bring all of your friends."

P. T. A. MEMBERS TO HONOR GOVERNOR AT BANQUET

Members of the Parent-Teacher Association will be given first opportunity to secure tickets for a banquet in honor of Governor C. C. Young, Thursday evening, April 19, at the Hotel Franklin, San Mateo. It is expected that the most important event of the P. T. A. convention will be the dinner, with Governor Young as the honor guest. After the banquet the governor will speak at the Burlingame high school on "Reorganization of State Government." Tickets for the dinner, which will be at 6:30 o'clock, may be secured for $1.50, and application should be made to Mrs. H. A. Totten, 22 Occidental avenue, Burlingame, for reservations.

Mrs. George Putney, president of the Jefferson high school P. T. A., announces that she would like to see Daly City well represented at this dinner, as a matter of civic pride, and that local members should be particularly interested in attending, as three members of the district in which Jefferson is situated are candidates for office in the state federation.

STUDENTS PRESENT PROGRAM FOR THE JEFFERSON P. T. A.

A program was presented by Mr. Miller and students of the high school to entertain the Parent-Teacher Association at its meeting Thursday night of last week at the school.

The program consisted of a moving picture given by Mr. Miller, a banjo duet by Albert Ennis and Charles Pilgrim, a dance by Frances Poket and Muriel Warren, accompanied by Carmen Bautista; a piano solo by Marcella Savage, a song by Mabel Vireno, a banjo solo by James McIsaac, a violin and piano duet by Jack Sanderson and Mrs. Secour, and a recitation by Cynthia Morgan.

In addition to the entertainment a short business meeting was held. The association decided to send Mrs. George Putney, president of the club, as Jefferson's representative to the state Parent-Teacher Association convention to be held at Santa Cruz.

POLICE OFFICERS PREPARE FOR DANCE ON APRIL 14

The last meeting of the Peninsula Police Officers' Association was held on March 29 at the City Hall, Burlingame. The main discussion of the evening was the police ball, to be held on Saturday evening, April 14, at Pacific City, San Mateo.

The members of the committee are very active and are endeavoring to make this event the biggest ever witnessed on the Peninsula.

Quite an extensive program is being arranged, which will be broadcast over KFWI. The entertainment that will be presented will be of the finest talent, with excellent music for dancing.

Those attending this affair will be assured a wonderful time and an evening of genuine pleasure.

ST. MAXIMUS PARISH NOTES

Lenten devotions at St. Maximus are concluded this week with the final services of Holy Week. On Holy Saturday at 8 a. m., the new fire, Easter water, Baptismal font and Paschal candle will be blessed, followed by High Mass.

Confessions will be heard Saturday afternoon from 2 to 5, and Saturday evening beginning at 7 o'clock.

The Masses on Easter Sunday are at 6:30, 8:30, 10; High Mass at 11:30.

All the members of the parish are urged to make their Easter at this time.

May the joy of the risen Christ be yours at this blessed season.

COUNCILMEN--WHAT ARE THEIR DUTIES?

Have you ever stopped to consider what an aspirant for the position of Councilman must be prepared to give?

In Daly City, our Councilmen are required to give at least two evenings a week to civic affairs; if appointed on special committees, more than that. They must be at the service of all and sundry at all times, and their home lives are considerably interfered with, inasmuch as most matters requiring their attention are those which call them out in the evening.

Therefore, like the policeman in the old "Pirates of Penzance," "a Councilman's life is not a happy one."

There is not even the recompense of a large salary connected with the appointment. It may not be generally known, but the salary of a Councilman in Daly City is precisely fifteen dollars per month.

This goes to prove that any man seeking the position is most assuredly not after monetary gain.

In looking down the list of candidates, we find that some are people who have seen Daly City grow from a very tiny isolated settlement to the splendid suburb it has become today, and several have held other civic positions for years which have carried no emolument whatever, plainly demonstrating that it is largely public spiritedness which is acutating their candidacy. Much more is this true of those who are seeking re-election than the untried candidates. Councilmen Bodien and Sundermann have just completed, one a term of four years in office, and the other two terms, in all eight years of splendidly loyal, unselfish service to the city of Daly City, and if their past record is any criterion of their future procedure, Daly City voters will make no mistake in supporting them and helping to re-elect competent, intelligent men who will at all times safeguard the interests of the municipality as well as furthering every progressive movement.

Mr. Sundermann is a Mason, an Eagle, a member of the Sciots Band, a veteran Fireman, and a member in good standing (though no longer an active one) of the Milk Wagon Drivers' Union.

Mr. Bodien has been for the past twenty-five years, both as journeyman and foreman, and is today a member in good standing of the Machinists' Union, a member of the Eagles' Drum Corps, and a veteran Fireman also.

Both of these men have proven themselves in the past to be fully capable of carrying out the duties—ALL OF THEM—required by a Councilman.

In addition to these two seeking re-election, we have three other candidates in the field—Walter F. Hughes, Philip Ross and Frederick Werner Winter.

For City Clerke there the two entrants, Berton C. Ross and Gertrude Gehringer.

Mr. Ross, who seeks re-election to the position which he has occupied for the past five years, is one of Daly City's first residents, and lives with his mother at Cloverdale street, Daly City.

Mrs. Gehringer, the other candidate, has also lived here for a considerable number of years, and conducts Gertrude's Vanity Shoppe, at 6396 Mission street. Her husband, Adolphus Gehringer, is a member of the Board of School Trustees of Jefferson High School. Mrs. Gehringer has been active in social and fraternal matters for a long time in this community.

AND NOW, VOTERS, you have read the list of candidates. Let your next action logically follow on Monday and VOTE! Don't be a stay-at-home. Some of us are apt to think some certain thing is a foregone conclusion and don't bother to go to the polls. But whether or not you are personally acquainted with the candidates, give them earnest consideration after the perusal of this article, and identify yourseves with the progress of the city in which you live by registering your vote on Monday next, April 9. Your polling place is not hard to reach, and the polls are open until 7 o'clock.

VOTE, and help boost Daly City!

LOCAL BUSINESS MEN FORM ASSOCIATION

The merchants, business and professional men of Daly City, after due consideration, have created a newly organized association to be known as the Daly City Merchants' Association. The principal object of this banding together is to unify and concentrate all efforts for the betterment of our community enmasse. In other words, all the energy of each merchant and professional man of "our Daly City" will be nucleated in one body and expended to and for our entire community.

At a meeting held last Wednesday night, John J. Fahey acting as chairman, a motion prevailed to organize a new merchants' association, to be know as Daly City Merchants' Association.

The election of officers resulted in the following being selected: John J. Fahey, president: A. Vireno, vice-president; Dr. W. J. Lantheaume, secretary; M. A. Goldberg, assistant secretary; J. Twesten, treasurer; Peter Pavlos, Edmund Knoll, A. W. Wisser, H. M. Cahn and W. Haerdter, board of directors.

The committee on post office reported an interview with Postmaster Todd, who informed them that our post office will remain with the same service that we have enjoyed in the past. Other important information relative to the post office will be discussed and acted upon at the next meeting of the association, to be held at the City Hall, Wednesday evening, April 18, at 8 o'clock.

All merchants and professional men should be present on this date.

EAGLES' MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

The Past Presidents of our local Order of Eagles met with the booster committee at Eagles' Hall on Thursday evening of last week, who are making preparations for a monster class initiation, to be named the Past Presidents' class, in honor of all Past Presidents of our local Aerie. On the evening of the initiation there will also be presented veteran buttons to all members who have been in the organization for twenty years. The committee is arranging quite an elaborate program for the occasion, which it is expected will be attended by a 100 per cent membership.

PRELIMINARY WORK ON SAN MATEO SPAN MAKING PROGRESS

Preliminary work on the construction of the bridge that is to span San Francisco bay between San Mateo and Hayward is rapidly advancing, according to the latest progress reports submitted to the San Francisco Bay Toll Bridge Company.

Over 20,000 lineal feet of flotation channel, by means of which the materials and equipment for the bridge are to be floated into place, has been completed. The fleet of dredges employed are now engaged in widening the channel to the necessary width. The entire eastern portion of the channel will be completed by the middle of April.

The casting of concrete pile for the bridge is actively in progress, both at the Alameda yards of the Raymond Concrete Pile Company, which holds the general contract, and the San Francisco yards of the Foundation Company, which has the contract for the central piers.

On the west approach over 75,000 cubic yards of embankment have been placed by the drag line dredges, and over 20,000 cubic yards on the east approach.

Before the end of April, it is declared, the Raymond Concrete Pile Company will be turning out 200 concrete piles a week, and 11 sections of concrete spans at the Alameda yards.

SPECIAL MUSICAL PROGRAM AT THE METHODIST CHURCH

Sunday morning the Sunday school will assemble at the Daly City M. E. church at the usual hour, 10 o'clock, and after a brief class period will reassemble at 10:45, at which time they will present their special Easter program. Recitations and songs will be presented by the various classes.

At 11:30 church service will begin, and at this time all those who desire to come into membership of the church, or those who wish to be baptized, will be given an opportunity to do so. The pastor's subject will be "Victory."

For Sunday evening a special musical program has been aranged. Three Easter carols, "Now All the Bells are Ringing," "Christ the Lord is Risen Today," and "Come Ye Faithful Raise the Strain," will be sung by the choir.

Mrs. James R. Bennett will sing a soprano solo, "Open the Gates," and Mr. Stanley Lewis, a pupil of Prof. T. Eugene Goudey and a member of the Loving Club of San Francisco, a young man with a pleasing voice, will sing a tenor solo, "A Song of Praise," by Gonblier. All those that have had an opportunity to hear Mr. Lewis predict for him a great future. We are fortunate indeed to have him with us again.

Please make it a point to be present at all of the services. We are sure that you will enjoy them.

Easter sunrise services will be held Sunday morning at 6:30 on the hill near the water reservoir. The Presbyterian and Methodise churches will unite in this special service.

Blest be the Everlasting God,
The Father of our Lord;
By His abounding mercy praised,
His majesty adored.

When from the dead He raised His Son,
And called Him to the sky,
He gave our souls a lively hope
That they should never die.

ELLIOTT L. FISHER, Pastor.

DRIVER OF DEATH CAR HELD TO SUPERIOR COURT

The preliminary hearing of the case of G. W. Brazelton, of San Francisco, who was arrested on complaint of Henry Thomas for manslaughter, as the result of an automible crash on February 22, was held before Judge Ellis C. Johnson last Tuesday afternoon before a crowded court room. The hearing occupied over three hours and many witnesses were heard for both sides.

It is claimed that Brazelton's car struck the Thomas car from the rear, completely wrecking it, and killing Thomas Yates, of Daly City, one of the occupants of the car.

At the conclusion of the testimony, Brazelton was held to answer in the Superior Court of San Mateo county.

ANOTHER PIONEER PASSES

Edward Tensler, aged 75 years, a pioneer resident of Daly City, residing at 549 Cloverdale street, passed away last Thursday morning at 7:40. Death was due to natural causes. The remains are at the mortuary chapel of W. C. Lasswell & Co., waiting instructions as to whether interment will be in the local cemetery, or the body shipped to Wisconsin, where the deceased has two brothers.

ADVOCATES MILLION DOLLAR TUNNEL TO REACH COAST TOWN

A million dollar tunnel to connect San Mateo and Half Moon Bay was formally proposed to the San Mateo county board of supervisors last Monday by Fred H. Drake, of San Carlos, president of the San Mateo County Chamber of Commerce. The supervisors favorably received the suggestion and referred the matter to County Engineer George A. Kneese, who will make preliminary surveys and determine the approximate cost of the project.

Drake told the supervisors that there are 200 square miles of undeveloped territory between Pedro mountain and the southern boundary of the county because of lack of transportation facilities to compete with other localities in growing vegetable produce. "Those engaged in vegetable growing on the coastside now are absolutely unable to compete with growers in the Salinas valley," Mr. Drake declared.

A tunnel built from a point near the Crystal Springs lakes on the Half Moon Bay-San Mateo road, to the Pilarcitos creek, under the great mountain hump, would make rapid and cheap transportation possible for these growers, according to Drake. The tunnel would be approximately 3,000 feet long and would cost about $1,000,000, he told the board.

Supervisor Hickey favored the project, but declared that he did not belive it possible for the county to finance such a project with the expenditures slated for the next two years at least. He said that the five million dollar coastside road connecting San Francisco with Santa Cruz county, $50,000 for reassessment of county values, $50,000 for the road into Memorial Park, and the proposed million dollar foothill road on the Alameda de Las Pulgas would make the financing of the project a problem.

Drake then suggested that if it would be two or three years before the county could finance the proposed tunnel, that a franchise for its construction be given private interests and the tunnel be made a toll tunnel.

CHILDREN TO BE BAPTIZED AT GRACE PRESBYTERIAN

The theme for Sabbath morning at Grace Presbyterian church will be "The Shining Trail; or Who Had Been Here?"

On this Sabbath evening the contest of church attendance will be closed and the winner of the prize will be publicly honored. Come and see who gets it.

Sunday morning at 10 o'clock there will be several children baptized, and some will unite with the church, for which we are thankful.

The goal set for the attendance on Sabbath morning for Sunday school is 225, and we trust that all in this side will come and help to swell the number.

Our attendance last Sabbath was most inspiring, and at the evening service Mrs. McNair sang two numbers which were most appropriate and touching. We are planning to have some more special songs for this Sabbath, as Mr. Gifford Teal, will sing for us two numbers, as this will be the last before he goes to San Jose to make his home.

We are sorry to hear that Mr. Gifford Teal, who has been with us so many times and sang to such good acceptance, is leaving, but on the other hand we are glad that he is going into school work again and preparing for his life's work, and we sure wish the brightest and best future for him. He will leave for San Jose in the near future.

Don't forget the sunrise service on the hill on Sunday morning at 6:30.

CHAS. H. GATCHELL, Minister.

Carpenter Dies From Fall

Fred Marshaleck, a carpenter of South San Francisco, is dead from injuries received in a fall down a flight of stairs. The fall occurred as he started to get some wood. Heart trouble is believed to have caused the fall.

BOY SCOUT COUNCIL TO MEET NEXT WEEK

The far-flung influence of the Boy Scout movement will be strikingly demonstrated at two events in connection with the eighteenth annual conference of the organization's supreme council in this country, to be held April 9, 10 and 11, in San Francisco.

In a great pageant-parade one of the five divisions will consist exclusively of Scout troops costumed and bearing insignia representative of the different nations in which Scouting is firmly established, including England, France, Italy, Belgium, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Switzerland, Scotland, Mexico, China and Japan, each boy being either of foreign nativity or alien born parentage. Heading the line will be a mammoth float symbolizing "World Brotherhood," and some of the trrops will march to music from instruments identified with the country they represent, the Scottish section having bagpipes and the Chinese contingent fiddles and cymbals. It will be a spectacular and noisy stiring of the so-called "melting pot."

At a banquet to be staged in the Palm Court of the Palace Hotel, the universality of Scouting will be stressed in various ways. San Francisco's consular corps will occupy tables embellished with the colors of their respective nations and in the decorations there will be a lavish mingling of foreign flags with the Stars and Stripes. In his introductory talk the toastmaster, President Chas. C. Moore, of the local Scout organization, will stress the fact that the Boy Scouts is the only non-racial and non-sectarian body to be found throughout the civilized universe, and that no populace on earth is equipped with cosmopolitanism equal to that of San Francisco, is is evidenced by the personnel of its Scout troops.

We invent about 3,000 new words every year, yet sometimes find it difficult to express our thoughts in parliamentary language.

One of the 30,000 California women who cook with electricity

The morning shower refreshed the air. Warm sunshine has dried the grass. It is an afternoon to be outside.

Friends are coming for dinner—four people beside the family! And this woman is spending the afternoon in her garden.

She uses an electric range. The whole dinner was placed in the oven at one o'clock. At four, the electricity turned on and started the meal cooking. A Temperature Control keeps the oven at the proper temperature. At six, the current will turn off. The insulated oven will keep the meal warm until dinner is served.

That is the freedom you'll enjoy with electric cooking.

Why don't you eliminate the monotony of preparing meals by using an electric range? You can see them at our office.

MACHINISTS ENDORSE ARTHUR J. BODIEN

San Francisco, Cal., March 29, 1928.
To the Citizens of Daly City:

It has been brought to our attention that Arthur J. Bodien, a member of this Union for the past twenty-five years, is a candidate for re-election to the office of Councilman of Daly City.

Without solicitation on his part, the members of Lodge No. 68 feel it to be their duty to endorse his candidacy and to advise our many members living in Daly City that his past record as a union man, both as a journeyman and a foreman, entitles him to their earnest support.

More and more each year the workers realize that is absolutely necessary to take men from their own ranks and place them in executive positions where, when occasion arises, they will be able to advance the cause of labor.

Brother Bodien is a man of wide practical experience in public affairs, a tireless and capable student of economics and a zealous advocate of government of the people, by the people and for the people, and it is men of this type that are always to be relied upon to safeguard the interests of a municipality in every transaction. He can be depended upon always to be alert and watchful in the interest of all citizens, and for this reason chould be re-elected.

It is with pardonable pride that we point to his past record, both as a union man and as an official of Daly City, and we are sure that if he is re-elected he will so conduct himself as a municipal officer as to earn the approval of the people generally of your little city. His past record is an assurance of his sincerity, integrity and ability, and we earnestly hope that the voters will show their appreciation of his character and worth as a public official by returning him to the office he seeks.

With best wishes for our common good, we are

Fraternally yours,
INTRNATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF MACHINISTS.

ANNUAL CONVENTION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS

The members of the City and County Federation of Women's Clubs will act as hostesses to the delegates who will gather in San Francisco for the annual convention of the San Francisco district, California Federation of Womens' Clubs, April 18, 19, 20 and 21. Mrs. J. E. Butterfield, president of the City and County Federation, is in charge of the plans for the entertainment of the visiting members, and Mrs. Hamilton J. Riggins, president of the San Francisco district, will preside at the sessions. The annual reception will be held in the East West gallery of the Western Womens' Club, Sutter street, Wednesday evening, April 18.

HENRY SUNDERMANN ENDORSED BY UNION

San Francisco, Cal., March 30, 1928.
Mr. Henry Sundermann, 522 Winchester street, Daly City, Cal.
Dear Sir and Brother:

It gives me great pleasure to at this time inform you that our local Union, at its regular meeting held on Wednesday, March 28, granted their hearty support and endorsement of you candidacy for re-election to the office of City Councilman of Daly City, San Mateo county.

We can only say that this is a mild expression of our willingness to give a long time member of organized labor the support of the Wilk Wagon Drivers' Union, Local No. 226, that which is due to you as a member of Local Uo. 226, as a faithful worker and brother in all times of need, and service to those of the toiling classes of your district.

Wishing you all the success possible, and lending all the good will that it will be an instrument of assistance to your return to the office to which you are now aspiring.

Respectfully and fraternally,
MILK WAGON DRIVERS' UNION, LOCAL NO. 226
(SEAL.) M. E. DECKER,
Secretary-Treasurer.

PROGRESS PAGEANT IN CIVIC AUDITORIUM

An exposition of industrial, mechanical and commercial products and activities of the state of California, with hundreds of manufacturers and institutions represented, will be a feature of the "California Pageant of Progress," in the Civic Auditorium, San Francisco, nightly from April 24 to 28, inclusive. The entire main floor of the great Civic Auditorium structure will be utilized for an attractive array of exhibits, and civic associations and industrial groups will sponsor the novel exposition.

The local Knights of Columbus are sponsoring the "California Pageant of Progress," with the co-operation of civic, commercial and fraternal organizations. Nightly, from April 24 to 28, inclusive, elaborate stage programs will be presented by theatrical producers, and band concerts, fashion promenades and civic demonstrations will be features each evening.

SIDELIGHTS

Nancy Ann Miller, of Seattle, participated in a two-day wedding ceremony which changed her name to Her Highness, Maharanee Devi Sharmista Holkar, as thir wife of a Hindu potentate at Barwaha, India. Another way to get many columns on the front pages.

They take their kissing seriously in Redding, where Miss Octavia Hufford had H. L. Gimblin arrested for using cave man methods in connection with the osculatory art. Three trials have resulted in hung juries, and the town is split into two factions over the case.

Haircuts should be avoided when the moon is full, according to a London seer, who declares that hair, like other vegetation, contains more "sap" at that time. It should be cut just before the new moon, he says, presumbably because the sap is then in the head and not in the hair.

Mothers are seldom referred to in a flippant manner, but a Toronto bakery disregards custom and tradition by displaying this sign: "Pie like mother used to make, 6 certs; pie like mother tried to make, 12 cents."

Mrs. Belle de Rivera, aged 80, who founded the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs, approves modern women as contrasted with those of her early recollection. She declares that the married woman of former generations was a "poor, pitiful creature, absolute in her submission to her husband."

Even an office holder is entitled to some protection against slander, according to the view of Justice MacLean, of Melville, Saskatchewan, who awarded $500 damages to W. R. Fansher, a member of parliament, in a suit against Henri Peran. In a political campaign Peran charged that Fansher had been "bought by the Conservative party."

Another of life's little ironies is seen in a recent occurrence in Toledo, Ohio. A physician called to treat a man injured by a fall on a slippery sidewalk jokingly remarked that his patient should "watch his step next time." Then leaving the house the doctor fell on the same sidewalk and broke his own leg.

A law is proposed in the Alberta legislature to conform to the ideas of the Indian girls of that province, by reducing their marriage age from 16 to 14 years. Clergymen report that the young girls select their mates, according to the tribal custom, and live with them regardless, when unable to be married because of being under age.

Two out of every three Canadian families own their own homes.

It will be difficult to outlaw war so long as nations refuse to stay licked.

ANNOUNCEMENT

In announcing my candidacy for the office of City Clerk of Daly City at the coming election on April 9, I wish to state that I have been a resident of this city, at 67 Woodrow street, for the past twenty-one years, and have been active in civic, social and educational affairs for the betterment of the community. I place my name for your approval on the ballot with the full knowledge of the requirements necessary for the position. I will appreciate your vote on Monday, April 9, 1928, in my behalf.

ELECT WALTER F. HUGHES FOR TRUSTEE OF YOUR CITY

Voters, your attention is called to a worthy candidate for election as City Councilman of Daly City. Since he came to your city to make his home, he has made many friends among you. He has always expressed progressive and constructive ideas for the good and betterment of the community.

All the qualifications necessary for a successful administration, he possesses. The conduct of the office he is seeking requires a man who has business experience, executive and practical ability and sincerity of purpose. His years of business dealings in your community has proven his business ability, and his record of service over seas with the 167th Infantry, 42nd Rainbow Division, and the 60th Engineers, into which service he entered as a private and came back a commissioned officer, proves his executive and practical ability. No one can dispute his reputation as a man of sincerity of purpose.

If he is given a chance by his election, he will prove to you he has the public interest at heart and that he will do everything in his power to promote the welfare and progress of the community.

FARMER'S WIFE GETS STRENGTH

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Schoolfield, Va.—"My mother had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I decided to take it for my own troubles and found great relief. I was hardly able to stand on my feet sometimes and now I feel better than I have for several years. I credit the Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with my present good health. I have taken five bottles of it and I am now able to do all my housework and sewing, feed my chickens, milk the cow and tend the pigs, and feel fine."—Mrs. J. C. America Far in Lead

The United States leads the world in the production of electric horse power, according to a survey just completed by the Department of Commerce. Forty per cent of the total power of the world is generated in the United States. Similarly, with respect to the manufacture of electrical goods, America leads, producing about 50 per cent of the world's total.

A Benefactor

A physician who reaches out to benefit humanity leaves a record behind him that is worth while. Such a man was Dr. R. V. Pierce. His study along medical lines, and his knowledge of the remedial qualities of herbs and plants led to the discovery of his wonderful herbal remedy, Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is just the tonic required if a woman is borne down by pain and sufferings at regular or irregular intervals, by nervousness or dizzy spells, headache or backache. Favorite Prescription can be had in tablet form as well as liquid at your neighborhood store.

"You needn't try to bluff me, Marvin!" his father frowned. "I know all about it! You've come here to keep an appointment with this young woman!"

"I was not aware of it!"

"I tell you," his father indignantly insisted, "you needn't try to humbug me! I caught her in the very act of waiting for you!"

Marvin looked perplexed. "Well, if you did, why on earth should you (apparently) be blaming me for that?"

"When I show you what I have here—" But as his father snatched from his breast pocket a folded paper. Meely broke in:

"Now that you are here, Mr. Marvin, will you be so kind as to drive me to the nearest telegraph office? I've got to wire some money to my needy parents and it's pressing."

"I'm at your service," Marvin, looking more and more bewildered, responded, taking her coat from a hook on the wall as she started to reach for it, and holding it while she slipped into it.

"B-but," his father stammered, flushing very red, "Miss Schwenckton! Your promise! This paper you've signed—"

"Yes?" she inquired. "What about it?"

"What about it! Your signed promise to make no demands on my son—"

"But I wouldn't suppose my asking him to take me to the express office to cable—telegraph to my family a bit of money I've acquired—would come under the 'demands' referred to in that paper, would it?"

"In the very hour of your signing this paper and accepting that money you dare to go off driving with my son!"

"What on earth?" asked Marvin, their demeanor and conversation not only not bearing out his supposition, but suggesting a very different state of things.

"Look at this!" his father exclaimed, thrusting the paper at him. "Read that! And then decide whether you want to go off driving with that girl!"

Marvin, feeling dizzy, read the few sentences on the paper signed "Amelia Schwenckton."

"But what, in God's name, is it all about? What sort of 'demands' is she swearing not to make on me—" He stopped short, a staggering idea flashing upon him. "You must mean St. Croix!" He turned to the girl. "Does this refer to St. Croix?"

"I don't know!"

"You don't know!" cried Mr. Creighton. "Why," he exclaimed, "are you both trying to saddle St. Croix with a thing he has nothing to do with? As if I'd ever have to buy off a girl from marrying him!"

"Are you buying off Miss Schwenckton from marrying me?" laughed Marvin, and as he spoke he tore the paper into bits and scattered them on the floor.

"What makes you think, Father, that such desperate measures as this are necessary for my protection against even so dangerous a person as Miss Schwenckton?"

"And anyway," the girl spoke in, "I'm resigning. Please find a teacher, Mr. Marvin, for my school, will you?—for I'm leaving tonight."

"Father! Why on earth are you driving her away? There's absolutely nothing between us and—"

"'Dangerous person' is right, Marvin, and no exaggeration! I have just given that girl five thousand dollars for the signed promise which you so imprudently destroyed!"

"I don't believe it!" cried Marvin sharply.

"Miss Schwenckton, will you show him the roll of bills I've just given you?"

"He might tear them up as he did your piece of paper!" she demurred, showing no least embarrassment or shame. "It's not a bribe, Mr. Marvin," she explained, "it's a loan, which I shall pay back as soon as I've earned it at Hollywood. Your father seemed so anxious to believe that I was luring you to your ruin and so eager to buy me off you that I hadn't the heart to disappoint him; especially as I'm in desperate need of money. And it is nice of your father to give the American screen a chance to be elevated! So I'm off to Hollywood!" And before either Marvin or his father could reply, she had seized her hat and fled from the room.

Marvin made a dash to follow, but his father interposed—slamming the door and standing against it.

"Don't make a d—d fool of yourself, Marvin! Running after a girl who takes a bribe!"

"No worse than your giving her a bribe!" Marvin panted.

"You can thank me for saving you from being taken in by an unprincipled hussy!"

"Stop calling her names! You're entirely wrong about her!"

"What would you call a girl who accepts five thousand dollars to drop you cold?"

"You heard her say she was borrowing it to go to Hollywood. She's perfectly right, too. She needs it and you don't. You've too much money and she hasn't enough. You held it out to her and she grabbed it. I don't blame her! What started you on such a wild chase as this? What on earth put it into your head that I was courting her? Surely she didn't claim I was?"

"Her accepting the bribe was an admission of it! If you'd marry a girl that would take a bribe—"

"You thrust it on her—she needed it desperately—"

"Do you deny being in love with her?"

"I wasn't sure until just now! But a girl with pluck enough to cheek you, Father, and grab while the grabbing was good—oh, well," Marvin drew a long breath and turned away, his face suddenly gloomy and sullen, "you needn't worry! I wouldn't marry an actress, they're too temporary; I'd prefer a permanent arrangement in marriage. Let me out, please."

"Marvin!" His father's tone was suddenly gentle. "Give up this fool job of yours and come home! Your mother is unhappy, having you away. And—of course I want you back, too."

Marvin hesitated. "I can't turn down this job until my term of office is over. And if my living at home means I've got to sell my manhood to you, Father—"

"I'll not interfere with you."

"Even if I decide to marry a county teacher?"

"We can deal with that contingency when it comes up."

"All right, then."

The two men left the schoolhouse together.

* * * * * * * *

Mr. Creighton took St. Croix to task for his misleading description of the school teacher.

"How you ever got the idea that she was illiterate, common—"

"But she is!"

"We can't possibly be talking of the same person!"

"The person I'm talking of is Miss Schwenckton, the teacher of William Penn school, the niece of the farmer, Sam Schwenckton. I had doughnuts and coffee with her and Sam Schwenckton and his wife in their very own kitchen the night my watch was taken from me!"

"I don't understand it at all!" complained his father. "Barring the fact that the girl accepted a bribe from me, I'd call her a thoroughbred!"

The puzzle seemed insolvable.

Meantime, Marvin was feeling by no means so lenient toward Miss Schwenckton's accepting that money from his father as he had pretended. In spite, however, of the sick recoil he felt from her for departing with that five thousand dollars, the sight of her schoolhouse when he drove past it, now occupied by her efficient, informed and uninteresting successor, gave him a pang that every day grew sharper; a restless longing that was in danger of increasing to an insatiable hunger.

St. Croix, meantime, had just about reached a stage where he was on the point of defying prudence and trying to see Meely once more; and Marvin was contemplating the probable folly and futility of his asking his board for a leave of absence to go to Hollywood, when a cablegram which their mother received just at this time from England diverted them somewhat from their absorption in their own misery.

The cablegram was from Mrs. Creighton's cousin, Sir John St. Croix, announcing that his daughter, Baroness Sylvia St. Croix, would sail for America on the Berengaria on January 2 for a short visit to her American cousins. She could be identified at the boat by a handkerchief tied on her left wrist.

This news threw the family into some excitement. St. Croix volunteered to go to New York to meet the ship. He, however, demanded of Marvin that he leave him a clear field.

"I can at least safely promise you," said Marvin, "that I'll keep out of it unless—until," he corrected himself, "she turns you down."

CHAPTER X

As St. Croix' longing for Meely was never for a moment associated in his mind with the idea of marriage, it did not in the least dampen the zest with which he went to New York to meet—as he confidentially hoped and believed—his prospective bride. This would be a marriage so exactly to his taste!—allied to an old English family of rank, administering a distinguished old estate that for generations had been in the family.

His experience with girls gave him no reason to doubt that he would find favor with his noble kinswoman. So, it was with a complacent self-confidence that, well-groomed and clad in his smartest clothes, he stood on the wharf on the afternoon of the arrival of the Berengaria and with tense expectation watched the passengers file past him down the gang-plank—his eyes searching for a young girl with a handkerchief on her left wrist.

He did hope she would be good-looking. It would be an awful wet blanket if she turned out to be ill-favored; though nothing short of an actual hump would stop him. A man could of course seek his consolations outside his home—

It did not occur to him, naturally, that his wife might have need of consolations and compensations.

Looking for a wrist bound with a handkerchief proved to be rather a maddening business. Wrists could be examined only as the passengers passed close before him, while faces could be scanned halfway up the gangplank.

A procession of men and elderly women sent his gaze far up the plank in search of more young people—when suddenly his eye was caught by a lovely face at the top of the long slope which struck him as vaguely familiar—yet unfamiliar, too, in its vivacious expression, its intelligence, its delicacy. Surely he had seen that face somewhere before—though the poise of an exquisite small head, the general look and air of a thoroughbred, the modish style of the young woman, were not familiar.

Why! She looked like Meely Schwenckton! How strange—and how absurd! At least her features did—extraordinarily like!—yet so widely different, too, with that vivid, intelligent countenance, proudly arched little head, graceful bearing—and of course her neatly arranged hair, stylish clothing. But good G—d, how like Meely she looked!

"Am I seeing things?" he wondered, his heart beating thickly.

So close she passed him by that her arm brushed his and her eyes looked for an instant straight into his—but not the trembling of a lash nor the least quiver of her lips suggested that she had ever seen him before, as she walked on to mingle with the crowd—leaving him bewildered, confounded, with a weird doubt and uncertainty—when suddenly, as his gaze followed her, she lifted her hand to straighten her hat, which in the crowd had been pushed askew—and he saw, with a wild bounding of his heart, that her wrist was tied up with a handkerchief!

In an instant he was at her side and had seized her hand—the confusion of his mind so great that all his usual self-confidence was lost in a floundering muddle. He had been so sure of himself, of his ability to impress favorably even a sophisticated English aristocrat with his ease and sang-froid—and he was painfully aware that no country bumpkin could have been more awkward.

River Kept in Order by Chinese Engineer

In view of the disastrous Mississippi floods it is interesting to note that 2,100 years ago a Chinese engineer, Li-ping, laid down the correct engineering principle for controlling the flood conditions of a river flowing through a flat alluvial plain.

The works that he and his sons established for controlling the waters of the Min river in Szechwan province and distributing them across the great Chengtu plain are still in perfect operation. The Chengtu plain is an area 100 miles long and sixty miles wide. Across this plain the Min river is distributed in eight main branches, converging at the lower end of the plain to form a single river again, which empties into the Yangtze above the Gorges.

Throughout the 2,100 years, the engineering principle laid down by Li-ping, without which the whole system would have destroyed itself centuries ago, has been followed. Flood conditions are still unknown. On the walls of the temple built to the memory of Li-ping and his sons at Kuan-hsien, is written this saying, familiar to every Chinese student: "Shen tao t'an tso yen," meaning "Dig the bed deep, keep the banks low."—Minneapolis Tribune.

Antiquity of Bagpipes

Jacques de Morgan, during his excavations in Persia, found some terra cotta figures, dating from the Eighth century B. C., playing on what appear to be bagpipes. Again we find the bagpipe in Persia in the Sixth century A. D. on the great arch at Takht-i-Bostan. While crude, the representation serves as evidence that the bagpipe was in use during the 14 centuries which elapsed between the time the terra cotta figures discovered by De Morgan were molded and the carving in the rock at Takht-i-Bostan.

EASTER OBSERVANCE

Easter Sunday this year falls on April 8, exactly midway between the earliest and latest possible dates established for this important Christian festival, which may occur as early as March 22 or as late as April 25.

Strictly speaking, the observance of Easter was an innvoation introduced into the church calendar more than a hundred years after the ministry of Christ, being a continuation or outgrowth of the Jewish Passover.

There is no trace of the observance of Easter as a Christian festival recorded in the New Testament or in the writings of the apostolic fathers. Neither Christ nor His apostles enjoined the keeping of this or any other particular feast. The early Christians, being derived principally from the Jewish church, continued to observe the old Jewish festivals, hence their Passover was perpetuated in the spirit of their new religion and eventually became the feast we now celebrate as Easter.

The date of Easter observance was the subject of some of the most bitter controversies which rent the early church, at one time no less than three different dates having been observed in the same year by various branches.

The very name of Easter is from the Old Teutonic mythology, being derived from Eostre, the Anglo-Saxon goddess of spring.

But, however originated, Easter commemorates the central basis of the Christian religion, the resurrection of Christ, and has been observed from very early times with stately and elaborate ceremonial, coupled with many curious and interesting popular customs, among which the sending of Paschal eggs is one of the most universal.

This custom, in turn, is derived from pagan sources, the egg being known to the ancients as a symbol of immortality.

KNEE PRINTS TELL

A Sherlock Holmes in real life appears in Alabama, where a culprit has been literally run to earth through the shrewd deductions of an alert limb of the law.

To be specific, George Harris, police chief of Alabama City, recently caught, not red-handed, but red-kneed, one William Salvatore, alleged leader of a band of daring chicken thieves who have plied their nefarious trade with hitherto marked success.

A resident of the town had spaded up the dirt floor of his chicken house as a sanitary measure and next morning several fat hens were missing. The matter was reported to Chief Harris, who discovered knee-prints in the fresh soil; also remembered having seen Salvatore that morning with red dirt on his knees. Salvatore was arrested, still bearing the tell-tale earth on his trousers. Compared with the red clay of the chicken house floor, the color matched perfectly, as did his knees and the imprints thereof.

Under the circumstances there was nothing left for Salvatore but to confess, which he did in copious fashion. Alabama chickens and their owners will breathe easier from now on, thanks to Chief Harris and his knee print system of identification.

ALIMONY PLUS

While a good many men pay large sums as alimony, the plight of an actor in Los Angeles named Cummins who is contributing rather promiscuously as a result of unfortunate matrimonial ventures, places him at the head of his class.

Under a court decree Cummins was ordered some months ago to pay $600 a month to his divorced wife. Notwithstanding this, he married again and is now being sued for divorce by wife No. 2. Pending the outcome of the suit, he must pay the second wife alimony at the rate of $230 a month.

But this is not all. The latest Mrs. Cummins has no children, but she possesses two valuable dogs which are her joy and pride. She insisted that they should be provided for, also. The judge concurring, an additional $45 a month was assessed against Cummins for the support of the dogs. So he is now contributing a total of $875 a month to provide the necessities and luxuries of life for two women and two dogs, without the benefit of the companionship of either.

Can you beat that for hard luck?

RAILWAY SAFETY

In contrast with the ever increasing number of automobile deaths, fatal accidents to passengers on railways of the country have dwindled almost to the vanishing point, due to better equipment and the greater exercise of safety precautions.

Based on the experience of a leading transcontinental railroad in 1927, a passenger could travel around the world 2,400 times without an accident, and many times that far without being killed.

Safety measures have achieved even greater comparative results with respect to railroad employees. A reduction of 27 per cent in the number of casualties to railroad workers was attained last year. It is figured that on an average one of these would be able to work 120 years for each accident that would happen to him.

At present, it is pointed out by a recent writer, railroading is as safe as banking or any other important calling. A passenger on a railroad train is as safe as he would be sitting at home or attending the movies. Many large systems go a whole year without killing a passenger.

Nowadays, the dangers of travel are confined almost exclusively to the deadly motor car.

TOO MUCH NOISE

In many cities the even increasing volume of noise produced by industrial machinery has become a source of great annoyance, both day and night, and engineers are now engaged upon the problem of reducing the disturbing sounds by scientific means.

At a recent conference held in Hartford, Conn., this problem was discussed and hopes for at least a partial solution were expressed. An industrial silencer, invented by Hiram P. Maxim, who devised the Maxim silencer for firearms, is said to give great promise of successful application in the desired direction.

It is believed that the Maxim principle can be applied to steam locomotives, gasoline and Diesel engines, air compressors, riveting machines and other producers of loud and discordant noises. The inventor himself believes that "one by one the nuisances will be eliminated."

Now, if there would only arise a genius who could put the soft pedal on the vocal chords of some of our human noise-makers!

HIS RECORD

We have been reading the high school record of what appeared to be a most promising young man. Here it is: Vice-president of senior class; president of Webster club; president of school chapter National Honor society; member debating team; member of student council three years; business manager of school newspaper; literary editor of school annual; president of school's Classics club; junior aide of Thucyliles club; selected by seniors as "best boy orator."

By all the rules, such a young man should be expected to attain prominence. He did. Everybody has been reading about him. His name? William Edward Hickman, murderer of little Marion Parker of Los Angeles; also convicted of a previous murder, and under sentence of death.

All of which proves nothing, except that one can never tell how a youngster may turn out.

Colma News Notes

Mr. Gambetta, of Redwood City, was in town on business during the week.

Mrs. Christine Hume will entertain the members of La Fiesta Social Club at her home on April 20.

The school children of the Jefferson district are enjoying the regular Easter vacation of one week.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Zanetti and daughter Lois Jean visited Mr. and Mrs. T. Merlo, of San Francisco, last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John O'Connor, of Oakland, were dinner guests at the home of Mrs. Helena O'Connor last Sunday.

Mr. John Butler, of South San Francisco, was a Colma visitor last Tuesday.

B. W. Haubrich, of Mission street, visited his sister, Mrs. John Quigley, of San Francisco, last Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Fischer and Bennie Haubrich motored to Palo Alto last Saturday, where they visited Mr. Rob Silva.

Mrs. P. L. Peterson, of Mission street, entertained a number of her friends at a delicious luncheon at her home last Wednesday.

Mrs. H. W. Brown, of Dunk street, spent a very enjoyable week end with friends in Palto Alto, and during her stay visited the U. S. Veterans' Base hospital.

The members of El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, Native Daughters of the Golden West, will participate in a joint meeting to be held in Redwood City in the month of May.

Mrs. Emma Woolsey, of Banta, San Joaquin county, who resided here for many years, was a week end visitor here and in the bay region. Her many local friends were very pleased to see her.

Miss Carter, music teacher, will hold a public recital in the Colma Community Center on Saturday evening, April 28. After an interesting program there will be dancing until a late hour.

The baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Al Zanetti, of Vale street, was christened by Rev. Father Schenone in Holy Angels' church last Saturday afternoon. She was named Lois Jean Zanetti, and the godparents were Mr. and Mrs. J. Merlo, Sr.

Many local young people plan to attend the Easter sunrise service on Mount Davidson next Sunday morning. This has been the custom for many years past, and is a never to be forgotten experience. After the services they will hike home by way of the ocean beach.

It is evident that the residents of Colma and vicinity are to be treated to a fine program of pictures at the New Colma Theatre during the month of April, judging from the calendar programs which have been distributed to each home. If you failed to receive one of these programs at your home, you can secure one by calling at the box office of the theatre, or by phoning Randolph 8637, and a program will be mailed you.

The members of La Fiesta Social Club had a most enjoyable time at their last social affair, which was held Thursday evening. First they had a special delicious chicken dinner at Topsy's Roost at the Beach and enjoyed several hours of dancing. Then all went to the ice skating rink, where Margie O'Connor, Audrey Diamond and Annette Lucey enjoyed the ice skating. The following girls were present: Collista Dalton, Lorraine Wall, Florence McKendrick, Tessie O'Connor, Annette Lucey, Katherine McKendrick, Julia Romer, Audrey Diamond, Bobby Hageny, Elsie Fahey and Margie O'Connor.

This being Holy Week, the Girls' Club of Colma have postponed their regular business meeting until Thursday evening, April 12, which will be held at their club rooms in the home of Mrs. H. W. Brown, on Dunk street. Plans for future social affairs will be made at this time.

Many members of El Carmelo Parlor motored to the U. S. Veterans' hospital at Palto Alto last Saturday to pay an Easter visit to the boys there. Gifts of candy, cigarettes and magazines were taken and distributed with a word of cheer. This is done several times a year by El Carmelo's members.

Leave it to the Garibaldi Bros., of the New Colma Theatre, to do things in a big way. During the month of April they have arranged to show some of the season's best pictures, including "The Cohens and Kellys in Paris," "The Gorilla," "The Garden of Allah," "The Covered Wagon," "Man, Woman and Sin," "Convoy," "The Winning of Barbara Worth," and several others.

AMERICAN LEGION TO HONOR ROOSEVELT

Under the supervision of Harold H. Price, chairman of the Boy Scout commission of the American Legion, the officers of the American Legion and committeemen from all Posts of the World War veterans' organization, are completing their plans for the reception and banquet to be given Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, April 9, at the Fairmont Hotel, San Francisco.

Colonel Roosevelt will be entertained by the officials of the Legion during his coming visit in San Francisco for the meeting of the National Council of Boy Scouts, the work of which is being participated in by every American Legion Post in the state of California.

Colonel Roosevelt was one of the founders of the Legion and was tendered the national commandership of that organization, but declined it because of his participation in politics and his demand that politics and the Legion be kept apart, Commander Dodson points out in discussing the coming visit.

CONDITION OF ROADS IN FLOOD AREA IMPROVED

Highway conditions in the Sacramento valley, where heavy rains and unprecedented melting of snows produced sudden flood conditions recently are gradually returning to normal, and it is now possible for automobile travel to use most of the main highway. Only one main highway is still interrupted, and that is the Garden highway, which carries traffic north from Sacramento to Marysville along the levees of the Feather river. This highway was interrupted when the long causeway at the end of the bridge across the Feather river at Nicolaus was washed out.

"INTERFERENCE" COMING TO THE GEARY THEATRE

When "Interference" opens at the Geary Theatre on Monday night, April 9, San Francisco will have its first opportunity of seeing the play that has set London agog for the past year. "Interference" was written by Roland Pertwee and Harold Dearden, well known English authors, who have written many short stories that have appeared in various magazines in this country. When "Interference" was offered for production in London the English producers thought that it was of such a highly melodramatic nature that it would not suit the placid British theatre-goer, and there was just a slight hint that the story was based on a certain "something" that happened in high society.

Their doubts were in vain, for "Interference" became an instant sensation. Offers came from all parts of Europe to reproduce it in the various capitals, but the authors held this privilege for themselves. The Charles Frohman Company, however, succeeded in obtaining the American rights and "Interference" was produced in New York six months ago, where it is now the outstanding dramatic success of that city.

A special company composed of noted players was organized by A. Leslie Pearce for a tour of the principal cities of the Pacific Coast, and San Francisco will be the third city in America to witness this sterling play. It is said that there is not a dull moment during the entire action of the play. The tempo is suited to the lives of the characters and the action is incessant and unexpected.

AMERICAN WAR MOTHERS' NATIONAL CARNATION DAY

Preparations have been started by the San Francisco branch of American War Mothers national organization for the observance of Carnation day, on Saturday May 12. Under the leadership of Mrs. Bessie D. Cooley, president of the San Francisco unit of the national association, a committee has been formed to arrange for the local observance of the day that is to be commemorated in several hundred cities of the United States, through the sale of carnations by legions of volunteer girls and women workers.

Proceeds from the sale of carnations will be used to assist the American War Mothers' charitable, welfare and relief activities in behalf of disabled and sick veterans, the children of needy ex-service men, and destitute war mothers. A portion of the proceeds from the sale wi'l be alloted for the maintenance of the national home for sick veterans and their families, near Denver, under the patronage of the American War Mothers.

The first steamboat to sail the ocean was the Phoenix, built by Col. John Stephens and navigated from Hoboken, N. J., to Philadelphia in 1808 by Robert Stephens.

Service
from the customer's viewpoint.....

THIS recognized fundamental of successful modern business is largely measured by the satisfaction of those it serves—assurance of honest value, prompt delivery, personal attention to special requirements or adjustments and countless other qualities in service. In the mass distribution and speed of today, many of these qualities of service may easily be pushed aside to the detriment of customer relationships.

Individual contact expressing personal interest is recognized as an important factor in service from the customer's viewpoint—and anything that can be done by personal contact can usually be done better by telephone because it's quicker and costs less.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

California's World War veterans served their home communities better in 1927 than did the veterans of any other state. That, it was announced last week, was the reason for national official of the American Legion unanimously awarding to California the James A. Drain trophy for community service of Legion posts throughout the state.

Miss Edna Stangland will assume duties July 1 as chief of the State Division of Adult Education, succeeding Mrs. Ethel Richardson Allen, according to an announcement by William John Cooper, State superintendent of public instruction. Miss Stangland has been secretary to the State superintendent for several years and recently has devoted part of her time to adult education work.

Announcement that the United States War Department has allowed California an additional $60,000 for use in construction work at the new National Guard encampment site near San Luis Obispo was made a few days ago by Adjutant General R. E. Mittlestaedt. This follows a Federal allotment of $120,000 made several months ago. Construction work is now in progress.

Enforcement of the $6,000,000 bond issue for State parks by the board of directors of the California State Automobile Association was announced last week by E. B. DeGolia, chairman of the association's forestry committee. The motorist's organization supported before the legislature the legislation providing for submission of the bond issue creating a State park commission and authorizing a survey by that body to determine what scenic areas in the State should be included in a State park system.

As evidence that State publication of school textbooks is a paying proposition, State Printer Carroll H. Smith announced a few days ago that he has just completed preparations and distribution of civics texts at a cost of 47.7 cents each, as compared with an average private publishers' wholesale price of 96 cents, f.o.b., San Francisco. The editions ran 125,000 copies.

San Francisco and Oakland aspirants for State barber licenses will have need for long-haired friends when they appear before the State Board of Barber Examiners next June. The board announced a few days ago that each applicant must supply his own "patient" when he undertakes to prove his ability as a hair-cutter. The San Francisco examinations will be on June 4 and 5.

Attorneys of California have been set to studying law. The board of governors of the State Bar has mailed to every member a questionnaire requiring answers and suggestions on various problems of legal procedure and from these returns plans to formulate a program of law revision to be submitted to the legislature in January. Among the subjects of study outlined by President Joseph J. Webb of the State Bar are: Improved methods of jury selection, abolition of demurrers and motions to strike out and the elimination of other time-wasteing devices. Five sections—civil procedure, criminal procedure, courts and judical officers, regulatory commissions and ethics—have been formed.

Responsibilty for the failure of the St. Francis dam near Los Angeles early on the morning of March 13 was placed squarely with the builders of the structure by the Governor's commission appointed to investigate the disaster. The findings of the commission were: 1.—The failure of the dam was due to defective foundations. 2.—There is nothing in the nature of the dam to indicate that the accepted theory of the gravity type dam is in error. 3.—The failure of the structure indicated the desirability of having all of such structures erected and maintained under the supervision and control of State authority.

One of the big airships which will be used in the Los Angeles to San Francisco passenger service of the Western Air Express, was given a test flight at the Fokker plant at Hasbrouck Heights, New Jersey, last week. The plane made a speed of 120 miles an hour, according to word received here. The big monoplane will be one of five available in the service according to Harris M. Hanshue, president of the Western Air Express. A feature is that there will be an absence of noise or vibration in the passenger cabin which accommodates 15 persons. The service will begin May 1 and the 360 miles airline distance will be covered in three hours, thus providing one of the fastest services in the world. The planes will leave each terminal at 10.30 a. m. daily and lunch will be served abroad. Each plane will carry two pilots.

Oil field operations reported to State Oil and Gas Supervisor R. D. Bush during the week ended March 24, 1928, show 11 new wells started, as compared with 21 during the previous week. Of the 11 notices to drill filed, 4 were for wells in the Long Beach field, 1 in the Richfield field, 1 in the Goleta field, and 5 in the fields of Kern county. The total new wells this year is 242, compared with 367 at the same date last year. Tests for water shut-off numbered 24, compared with 23 during the previous week. Yearly total to date, 294; total to same date last year, 278.

SAVE WOMAN FROM SHARKS WHEN SHE FALLS OVERBOARD

Members of the Ship's Crew Risk Lives in Dramatic Rescue Work.

New York.—The dramatic rescue of Mrs. Luther B. Rosser of Atlanta, Ga., from shark-infested waters off Hamilton, Bermuda, was described by passengers on the Cunard liner California, back from a West Indies cruise.

Mrs. Rosser was swept overboard from the liner's tender while returning from a shore party. She was in the water half an hour before she was rescued. A motor boat and a life boat that put out to save her were carried away in the storm and beached on a reef 14 miles away.

Passengers raised a purse of $3,700, to be divided among 21 members of the crew who risked their lives in the rescue. Among the contributors was Thomas F. Gates, Philadelphia banker, who gave $1,000, and Mrs. William B. Leeds, the former Princess Xenia, of Greece, who also contributed generously.

Judge and Mrs. Rosser, with 150 other passengers, were returning from a shore trip in the California's tender, Corona. It was dark and a gale blowing. Less than 400 yards from the liner, a heavy wave went over the bow of the Corona and knocked Mrs. Rosser, who was on deck, against a gangway.

The gate gave way and she went into the sea.

Judge Rosser had to be restrained forcibly from jumping after her. R. C. Higgins, a Cunard line official, threw the gate to Mrs. Rosser and another passenger threw a life buoy. Meantime, Higgins was removing his shoes and coat and leaped overboard. Mrs. Rosser, with remarkable presence of mind, was clinging to the improvised raft and floating on her back.

Mrs. Rosser Was Clinging to the Improvised Raft.

Higgins reached her, and after a struggle, worked his way back to the Corona. He was exhausted and just as he and Mrs. Rosser were about to be pulled in, another big wave broke his grip on the Corona's rail. Mrs. Rosser was swept away, but those on board managed to pull him in.

Capt. C. A. McQuinn, of Bay City, Mich., a middle-aged mariner, who commands the Great Lakes steamer John D. Munson, was another passenger. When Mrs. Rosser was swept away the second time he tied a rope around his waist and dived after her from the upper deck of the Corona. Mrs. Rosser was carried away so fast, however, that the rope proved too short and he was unable to reach her.

Meanwhile, Pilot B. Green, of the Corona, and Charles Fox, a seaman, had put off in a small lifeboat and by heroic work managed to get close enough to pull her into it. The tiny craft was almost swamped and had shipped a great deal of water. While Fox rowed, Green borrowed Mrs. Rosser's hat and baled to keep the boat afloat until it could be worked back to the Corona. They made it safely and were pulled aboard.

The sea was too rough for the Corona to land its passengers on the liner, and she put back to Hamilton for the night. Nineteen men of the California, who manned the two lost boats, will be given gold watches out of the funds raised by the passengers. The remainder will be given to Green and Fox.

Yegg Steals Safe

Salt Lake City.—While a score of bystanders stared at him through a front window, a burglar pried loose a small safe from its concrete base, hoisted it to his shoulder and walked out of the door. Only when the store manager arrived was any effort made to capture the thief. He escaped, but abandoned the safe.

VEGETABLES

We need not feel bereft during the months while the gardens are resting and preparing for our next year's comfort, for we have still many good things to add variety, besides the Southern fresh things which even the most economical may indulge in occasionally.

Carrots a la King.—Cut carrots into small slices or cubes of even size and cook in very little water until tender. Prepare for a quart of carrots a pint of rich, highly seasoned white sauce using part cream, a teaspoonful of scraped onion, one tablespoonful of finely minced celery, the same of minced parsley and red pepper to taste. Pour the sauce over the carrots and serve very hot.

Vegetable Macedoine.—Arrange a cooked head of fine cauliflower in the center of a hot platter, surround with cooked latticed carrots, then with lengths of cooked celery, then with small onions and a few small beets, all seasoned well with salt and butter with a few dashes of paprika.

Savory Lima Beans.—Drain a can of lima beans, unless the fresh or dried are used. Cook the canned ones ten minutes, drain and add a teaspoonful of sugar and two tablespoonfuls of butter to each quart of the beans. Add one cupful of tomato sauce, let stand over the fire until very hot and serve. If dried beans are used soak over night, then cook until tender; season as above.

String Beans With Tomato Sauce.—Drain one quart of string beans, to the liquid add one cupful of diced celery, cook until tender. In one tablespoonful of butter cook one small minced onion, add one cupful of canned tomato pulp, a dash of cayenne and one clove. Combine all ingredients, add one teaspoonful of sugar and the same of salt. Cover closely and simmer, shaking occasionally. Cook a half an hour. Add two tablespoonful of butter and serve.

Milton Cabbage.—Shred a fine white cabbage in thin ribbons, pack in a saucepan and just cover with fresh milk; boil until tender, add three tablespoonfuls of flour to three pints of the cabbage, season with salt and plenty of butter, adding just before serving two or three tablespoonfuls of thick cream.

Fruits for Meals.

The dried or canned fruit may often take the place of the fresh, when that is not to be obtained.

Raisin Crumb Griddle Cakes.—Soak one cupful of soft bread crumbs in water ten minutes, then press out the moisture. Mix with one cupful of buttermilk or sour milk, one well-beaten egg, one-half cupful of flour sifted with one teaspoonful of baking powder, one-fourth teaspoonful of soda, one-half teaspoonful of salt. Add one tablespoonful of hot melted butter, two tablespoonfuls of sugar and three-fourths of a cupful of seedless raisins coarsely chopped. Bake on a hot greased griddle and serve with butter and sirup.

Buckwheat Raisin Bread.—Sift together two cupfuls of buckwheat flour and one-half cupful of wheat flour with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of soda, one-half teaspoonful of salt, add two tablespoonfuls of sugar, and beat in one and three-fourths cupfuls of buttermilk and one cupful of plumped and chopped raisins. Pour into a paper-lined bread tin and bake fifty minutes.

Nut, Date, Raisin Bread.—Sift together two cupfuls of wheat flour, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, two teaspoonfuls of salt, one-half cupful of light brown sugar, add one and one-half cupfuls of whole wheat or graham flour and one-half cupful each of chopped nutmeats, raisins and dates. Mix well, add one and one-half cupfuls of milk and pour into well-greased bread pans. Let stand for twenty minutes and bake in a moderate oven. This bread makes fine sandwiches.

Date and Walnut Dessert.—Beat two eggs well with one cupful of sugar and one-fourth teaspoonful of salt. Add two tablespoonfuls of flour sifted with one-half teaspoonful of baking powder, one cupful of chopped walnut meats, one cupful of chopped dates and a teaspoonful of lemon extract. Mix well, pour into small greased patty pans and bake fifteen minutes. Serve hot with whipped cream.

Apricot Roll.—Make a baking powder biscuit mixture, roll into an oblong sheet and brush with melted butter, spread with stewed apricots drained from their juice, sprinkle with sugar and a bit of cinnamon or nutmeg, roll up and place in a buttered pan. Pour in one-half cupful of the canned juice and bake thirty minutes. Serve with a hard sauce, whipped cream or a liquid sauce, using the juice from the can slightly thickened, sweetened and flavored with almond.

FLOWERS

The fairies had gone to the flower show after the people had left.

Suddenly they burst out laughing, for what should they see but a make-believe horse.

It was just such a horse as you see outside of a cobbler's shop—a make believe one but the same size as a real one.

This horse was covered with vines of ivy, so that it looked like an ivy vine horse.

"Hello, Ivy Horse," said the fairies. "You are certainly very fine indeed."

"It is a pity, though, that you cannot neigh. Never mind, you look just as though you could, at any moment!"

"Hello, fairies," called the flowers in the sample gardens which had been made for the flower show.

There were sample cottages and gardens around them; there were hedges of all sorts, beautiful Japanese hedges too.

There were lovely acacia flowers

They Burst Out Laughing.

the beautiful shrubs or small bushes.

There were rambler roses, and there were orchids.

"Sometimes, fairies," said the orchids, "we wish we grew out of doors and were picked by children and weren't the rare kind that grow in hothouses."

"Hello, fairies," called the spring flowers, some of which had been sent from a section of the country which was fairly near, but was a little warmer than the other sections.

There were beds of tulips, yellow, pink, red and mixed colors.

There were hyacinths of blue and hyacinths of white and hyacinths of purple.

There were sweet peas, and, oh, there were so many other flowers.

And the fairies and the flowers chatted and if you could have heard them it would have lulled you to sleep so musical and sweet were their voices, so fragrant the air.

Birds That Mimic

Birds from the ostrich down are very imitative. The ostrich where he lives alone, is silent, but in a country where the lions abound he roars. The reason for this is, we are reminded, that admiring the lions roar, he gradually learns to roar himself. And small birds buntings imitate pipits, and green finches imitate yellow hammers. They seek their food in winter together and they gradually steal each other's call. The jay is an insatiable imitator. Some jays will include in the repertory not only the cries or songs of other birds, but also the bleat of the lambs and the neigh of a horse. Even the nightingale imitates. In a nightingale's song it is sometimes quite easy to detect phrases he has borrowed from other birds.

Ship Carpenter's Invention

A ship's carpenter, after 60 years at his trade, has invented a new lifeboat of a very curious kind.

It is practically two broad, shallow boats fixed bottom to bottom, so that as one-half is capsized the other half is righted. It is said, however, to be practically impossible to capsize it, still more to sink it. In the double bottom are valves which will let the water out but will not let it in whichever way up the boat is; and there are tanks for fresh water and food which can be reached whichever side of the boat may be uppermost.

A "Fishy" Wish

"Good gracious—what a big sigh! Whatever's the matter?" asked mother of her little girl.

"I wish I were a fish, that's all," answered Dolly dismally.

"Why a fish?" laughed mother.

"Well, daddy said the sea was full of currents, and I like currants better than any fruit—'cept oranges, apples, bananas, and—well—just a few others!"

A Busy Old Mole

Old Ben Bole was a busy old mole,
A busy old mole was he.
He worked underground, where a living he found
For his wife and family.
Every mole had many a meal, and
Many a meal had he—
He worked for his life, and he worked for his wife,
And he worked for his children three.

HAS LONG BODY AND SHORT LEGS

Why Charlie Hall Makes Such Long Shots.

It is just as well to keep promises early. Golf fans and children are somewhat alike in their regard for this policy.

Having suggested a brief study on the fascinating subject of how Charlie Hall hits a golf ball so far, I actually went to the files and looked up the photographic study I made of the process some years ago, and here it is.

Now, Charlie Hall, of Birmingham, Ala., was designed by nature to hit a golf ball a long distance, so a study of his methods may hold only an academic interest for golfers who are not constructed with very long bodies and very short legs. This is the Hall mark of anatomy, and it enables Mr. Hall to do this, above everything else—it enables him to stand straight up on his short, stalwart legs and lash with all his power without disturbing his balance or his center of gravity by bending over, as a man with longer legs must do, says a writer in the Detroit News.

Charlie is 5 feet 6 inches tall, and his body is as long and as powerful as that of most athletic men 6 feet 4 inches in height, and all this vast power in his arms and shoulders and torso thus is easily commanded without complications from the stooping posture of taller golfers.

Great power, close to the ground—that is the secret of Charlie Hall's enormous range with the big shots.

Some of his performances are widely known. Once at Druid Hills, in the Southeastern P. G. A. championship, I saw him drive from the eleventh tee a distance of 360 yards, an achievement further noteworthy as he was playing with Bobby Jones, whose own shot was 340 yards, the pair of drives thus aggregating just 700 yards. At the seventeenth hole of the Columbia Country club at Washington, in the play for the national open championship of 1921, Charlie Hall and Abe Mitchell both employed a spoon to keep from shooting over the elevated green out of bounds. The hole, you see, was only 280 yards in length.

It must be a lot of fun to haul off and wallop a ball that way.

New Auto Record

The photograph shows Wade Morton, of Philadelphia, as he appeared after he broke the world's record for stock cars with his Auburn automobile at the race track at Daytona Beach, Fla.

Loren Murchison Gives Few Tips to Athletes

Loren Murchison, who recently recovered from a dangerous illness, regrets he may not be able to try for the United States Olympic track team again this year.

In a recent talk he pointed out that driving an automobile is not beneficial to athletes as it stiffens up the leg muscles and hardens them, when they should be soft and pliable. Bicycle riding and swimming, he points out, have something of the same effect, and he advises all young athletes in training to avoid these pastimes when near an important track meet in which they will take part.

Defense in Sports Has No Attraction

Defense in sports has little attraction.

Detroit, never a top notch defensive team, always drew big gate receipts because it carried the punch.

Gene Tunney, more of a defensive than an offensive fighter, can never be the gate card that the purely offensive Jack Dempsey was.

Walter Johnson and the late Christopher Mathewson, the greatest two pitchers of the last twenty years, never drew one-fifth as many people to the ball parks as the lambasting Babe Ruth draws.

The New York Yankees, not to be compared defensively with the Philadelphia Athletics of fifteen years ago, attract more than ten times as many people.

The offense has it in sport, at least with the crowds that keep the game going.

George Marvin in Sunset Magazine says—

"The Bank of Italy organization is a great democratic fraternity"

Mr. Marvin pays a further tribute to the human, democratic character of the institution when he says:

"The employes and stockholders ... for every Bank of Italy employe is a stockholder ... are electrified by daily opportunities for individual initiative for original contribution; daily heartened by a healthy merging of coordinated service with self-interest."

Why not do your banking with an institution that reflects the democratic, progressive spirit of America in every phase of its activities?

Webster Example of Great Man Misjudged

Daniel Webster was constantly accused of intemperance. There is no doubt that he liked good living and was a connoisseur in wines and food. When a strong man dies of cirrhosis of the liver the suggestion of alcohol is likely to intrude itself. It was a drinking age, and Webster can certainly claim no special abstemiousness. But the charges that he appeared in public and spoke when drunk have never been proved and are just the sort most readily circulated and most easily believed.

Writing in Harper's Magazine Gamaliel Bradford says: "To me Webster's love of the sunrise and habit of five o'clock in the morning work are quite inconsistent with serious dissipation."

"I do not find anything in Webster's religion particularly discordant with his morals. He was a devout church member, frequently discoursed upon religious subjects, and always with gravity and infinite unction. I believe that he was perfectly sincere and that there was not a tinge of deliberate hypocrisy in all this.

"But I do not see the slightest evidence that religion ever took profound hold of him either as a matter of agony or as a matter of rapture. I have an irresistible desire to class his religion with his politics. God offered an excellent parallel to the Constitution, and the Bible took the place of the Supreme court."—Detroit News.

"Old Women" Accorded Place as Physicians

Benjamin Franklin related a story, which was recorded and preserved by Thomas Jefferson, which throws a curious light on the doctors of his day, the Pathfinder Magazine recalls.

"When I was in London," said Franklin, "there was a weekly club of physicians of which Sir John Pringle was president, and I was invited by my friend, Doctor Fothergill, to attend when convenient. I happened to be there when the question to be considered was whether physicians had, on the whole, done most good or harm? The young members, particularly, having discussed it very learnedly and eloquently till the subject was exhausted, one of them observed to Sir John Pringle that though it was not usual for the president to take part in debate, yet they were desirous to know his opinion on the question. He said they must first tell him whether, under the appellation of 'physicians' they meant to include old women; if they did he thought they had done more good than harm; otherwise, more harm than good."

Bathed in Bathing Suits

The shortage of baths in big country houses of Victorian times was still more noticeable in the latter part of the Eighteenth century. Mrs. Montagu, the famous "Queen of the Blue Stockings," proclaimed with triumph: "My bathtub is ready for me, so tomorrow I shall go in." But there was a difficulty. "Pray look for my bathing dress," she ordered. "Till then I must go in in chemise and jupon."

Miss Dorothea Gregory wrote from Edinburgh: "I find there a cold bath in the house. Miss Gordon thinks I shall do well to make use of it, but as I was not aware of such a thing being in the house I did not bring my bathing dress with me." In those days a cold bath was not a thing to be taken lightly—or immodestly. — Manchester Guardian.

Early Wine Making

The actual making of wine in ancient times does not appear to have differed very much in principle from the methods obtaining at the present day. Plastering appears to have been known at an early date and when the juice of the grape was too thin for the production of a good wine it was occasionally boiled down with a view to concentration. The first wine receptacles were made of skins or hides treated with oil or resin to make them impervious. Later earthenware vessels were employed, but the wooden cask, not to mention the glass bottle, was not generally known until a much later date.

Strange

A Scottish professor had returned from a long walk and his feet were very sore. He was told the best thing to do was to bathe them in hot water. This he did. Then in the ordinary course of events, he proceeded to dry his feet. He dried one foot, then, without the slightest regard as to what he was doing, put it back in the basin. He then proceeded to dry the other foot, which he also redipped in the basin.

This went on for some time. Then he began to get puzzled.

"Good gracious!" he muttered at last; "I didn't know I had so many feet."

Inhuman Affiliation

Comprachicos was the name adopted by a nomadic affiliation famous in the Seventeenth century in Europe. This band of persons made a practice of buying and selling children. These children were by means of surgical operations deformed and disfigured so that they assumed certain peculiarities which provided the humor demanded at the time. The organization had its own laws, oaths and formulas, and was found principally in England, Spain, France and Germany. The name is a compound Spanish word meaning buyers of little ones.

Earth's Surface Never Quite Without Motion

No portion of the earth's surface is ever at rest, though all but the great movements of earthquakes escaped attention until recent years. The minute vibrations are followed by J. J. Shaw in Nature as an unending train of waves, waxing and waning in amplitude, that are unceasingly coursing along the earth's crust and reach to unknown depths. The wave period ranges between 4 and 8 seconds; the amplitude is between one 50,000th and one 2,000th of an inch, but with a wave length of 8 to 16 miles. The speed of the waves is believed to be about two miles per second. Such local causes as air tremors and the swaying of buildings and trees were formerly suggested, but it is now known that they are wide-spreading earth movements. Earthquakes are easily followed on the recording apparatus by the primary and secondary phases and the long waves rising to a maximum. The minor movements—microseisms—are not easily separated from one another, and there has been no means of studying their propagation. But recently certain tremors have been traced on recording instruments 60 feet apart. Continuing the investigation, the range has been extended to two miles, and it has been made practicable to pick out individual tremors on the two sets of records. One result is the showing that the travel of the microseisms is independent of wind and weather, though the source and cause of the movements are still a mystery.

Vultures Do Work of Scavengers in India

In my travels in India, writes a correspondent, I was in the vicinity of the Massacre Ghat, of evil repute in the Mutiny of 1857, and saw a vulture over the Ganges. This scavenger bird was apparently on the surface of the water, and was flapping its wings, for all the world as if a small crocodile had gripped its talons and was trying to drag it under. Then I observed a white object come to the surface momentarily and bob under again. My interest was aroused at the strange proceedings which followed. The vulture flapped its wings as the weight of the flotsam told on its strength. Again the white broke the surface and as it did so the huge bird, with fully opened wing, appeared to be using itself in the manner of a sail, and, with the help of the breeze, which was blowing, stirred its prey out of the mid-stream, flopping every now and then, till at last it ran the white object right up on a gently sloping shelf of sand on the near bank. By this time the air was thick with birds, and no sooner had the vulture in question beached his capture than a cluster of like birds swooped down, and the whole commenced an orgy of feasting and fighting. The next day a human skeleton remained.

Unique Telephone Use

Surgeons have discovered that by means of a telephone and an induction balance particles of metal lodged in human flesh can be detected instantly. Thus the surgeon knows exactly where to begin work without having to take a "picture" in many cases.

For example, if one is so unfortunate as to have a particle of iron lodged in the tip of one of his fingers and is uncertain whether it had been removed, these appliances would locate it quite easily.

First the patient is asked to place his fingers, one after another, on the balance. The moment the injured one comes in contact with the device the telephone proclaims the presence of any metal in the finger, if by chance any metal had been left.

Yodeling Swiss Custom

For more than a century Tyrolese yodelers have been heard on the concert and vaudeville stage of Europe and America. The first Tyrolese to popularize the yodel in the theater made a fortune in England by so doing and, returning to his native land, purchased a castle and retired in wealth.

This form of vocalization was perfected at family concerts organized to while away the long winter evenings in the country. It thus became the custom for groups of brothers and sisters who were especially noted in their own valley to go together upon the concert stage in family groups.—National Geographic Society Bulletin.

Strictly Business

Masters was the meanest man that ever lived and had never been known to give anything away. He either sold it or arranged an exchange.

"You've got a very bad cold," he remarked to a friend one day.

"The worst I ever had," wheezed the other.

"Well," said Masters, "I know a thing that will cure it in three days."

"I'd be very grateful if you'll tell me what it is," cried his friend.

"Grateful!" snapped Masters, and his eyes narrowed. "I'll tell you if you know what'll drive away these warts on my left hand."

New Era

A friend asked Chauncey M. Depew what he thought of women solons. As usual, Depew was not at a loss for a diplomatic answer.

"Well," he said with a chuckle, "I suppose the day may come when all the congressmen will be ladies. And when that time comes, I expect we'll have to call it 'The house of Miss Representatives.'"

EXCELLENT PICTURES BEING SHOWN AT STATE THEATRE

The State Theatre continues to provide splendid entertainment for the people of this section. A number of excellent features have been provided for next week. On Saturday, April 7, there will be a double feature, Buck Jones in "Whispering Sage," and "Nobody's Widow," in which Leatrice Joy has the leading role.

Sunday, April 8, Monte Blue and Leila Hyams will be seen in "The Bush Leaguer." On Monday and Tuesday, April 9 and 10, Colleen Moore and Donald Reed in "Naughty But Nice" will be the feature picture. There will also be a comedy, News and other attractions. The bill for Wednesday and Thursday, April 11 and 12, is one of unusual excellence, including Richard Dix in "The Gay Defender," and Harry Langdon in "There He Goes." On Friday, April 13, the State will present Richard Barthelmess in "The White Black Sheep." Friday night is Novelty Nite, when the patrons are assured a genuine treat.

MUNICIPAL AIRPORT BUSY PLACE IN MARCH

March was the busiest month in the eleven months' operation of Mills Field, San Francisco's municipal airport. The March business report, just released, shows 1,168 flights and 1,652 passengers carried to and from all parts of America without a mishap.

Because of the remarkable growth of Mills Field buusiness, the airport is fast approaching the self-supporting stage, according to a statement by the city's airport committee, including Supervisor Milo F. Kent, chairman, and Supervisors Andrew J. Gallagher and Frank McGovern.

A monument is to be erected to the man who invented post cards. A suitable inscription might read, "Wish you were here."

An Oklahoman 115 years old was knocked down by an automobile. When will people learn to keep children off the streets?

SCHOOLS WEEK TO BE COMMUNITY AFFAIR

In accordance with a custom of several years, the Grand Master of Masons of California, Will H. Fisher, has proclaimed that the anual observance of Public Schools week will be held this year during the week of April 23.

The observance of School week was instituted under the Mastership of Charles Albert Adams, now a member of the State Board of Education, and it has become of such significance that the details are conducted by citizens generally in the different localities of the state. This year for the first time the general committee will embrace members who are not initiates of the Masonic fraternity.

In the proclamation of the Grand Master of Masons, the following phrase is used: "And that it be particularly remembered that the observance of Public Schools week is a community affair in which we seek the active co-operation of local organizations and participation of all the people in the community."

SPLINTERS

From the H. H. Smith Lumber Yard

VOLUME I FRIDAY, APRIL 6, 1928 NUMBER 36

Published in the interests of the People of Daly City and vicinity by H. H. Smith and Employees.

Morse: "I feel like a two year old."
Doll: "Horse or egg?"

Judge: "When were you born; when is your birthday?"
Defendant: "Wotta you care; you ain't gotta give me a present."

Where a man can live, there he can also live well.

A lady had taken her 3-year-old son into the booth while her husband voted in that adjoining. When they met, after casting their ballots, the little chap said to his father:
"Daddy, mother must love all the politicians."
"How is that?" the father wanted to know.
"Well, I saw her mark kisses after a lot of their names."
Wonder who will get the most kisses?

Pastor Smith: "I'd like to call your attention to the flowers at the altar; they are for those who are sick at the close of the service."

We like to hear the newcomers — people who have lived in Daly City only a short time—speak of it as "our community."

Her: "What do you wear that glass in your eye for?"
The Man with the Monacle: "That eye is very weak."
Her: "Why don't you get a glass hat?"
